M’CHEYNE’S CALENDAR FOR DAILY BIBLE READING

M’Cheyne:

Robert Murray M’Cheyne (1813-1843) was a Church of Scotland minister who died before his thirtieth birthday. Nevertheless, his impact upon the religious life of Scotland was immense, not only through his preaching, but especially through his godly living. He has persisted as a powerful inspiration to generations of Christians due to the ongoing publication of his Memoir and Remains (compiled by his friend, Andrew Bonar). C.H. Spurgeon recommended that it ought surely to be in the hands of every Christian.

M’Cheyne compiled a calendar for his people for reading through the Bible once every year. We must be driven more to our Bibles, and to the mercy-seat, if we are to stand in the evil day, he explained.

The Calendar:

The calendar contains a center column pointing out that by following such a scheme, time would not be wasted. Often believers are at a loss to determine towards which part of the mountains of spices they should bend their steps. Here the question will be solved at once in a very simple manner. In addition, if an entire church reads together, their pastor will know in what part of the pasture the flock are feeding—he will thus be enabled to speak more suitably to them. And then, too, the sweet bond of Christian love and unity will be strengthened. We shall oftener be led to agree on earth, touching praise God in the same songs, and be nourished by the same words of eternal life.

As to fellowship, some, by having so large a portion, may be tempted to weary of it, as Israel did of the daily manna, saying, "Our soul loatheth this light bread!" and to read it in a slight and careless manner. This would be fearfully provoking to God.

Advice:

If we’re unable to read four chapters a day, we can still make profitable use of the calendar by dividing it in two. Read those chapters to the left of the dates in one year and those to the right in the next. In this way we may still read the entirety of Scripture every two years and the entirety of Psalms and the New Testament each of those two.

If a day’s reading is missing, it’s best not to delay for the sake of recovering it. Press on with the next day’s readings first and then make up what was missed.

In a letter to a young believer, M’Cheyne counseled, You read your Bible regularly, of course; but do try and understand it, and still more to feel it. Turn the Bible into prayer. Thus, if you are reading the lst Psalm, spread the Bible on the chair before you, and kneel, and pray, "O Lord, give me the blessedness of the man, etc." "Let me not stand in the counsel of the ungodly, etc." This is the best way of knowing the meaning of the Bible and of learning to pray.

Usefulness:

M’Cheyne’s letter of introduction to the calendar pointed out that by following such a scheme, time would not be wasted. Often believers are at a loss to determine towards which part of the mountains of spices they should bend their steps. Here the question will be solved at once in a very simple manner.

In addition, if an entire church reads together, their pastor will know in what part of the pasture the flock are feeding—he will thus be enabled to speak more suitably to them. And then, too, the sweet bond of Christian love and unity will be strengthened. We shall oftener be led to agree on earth, touching praise God in the same songs, and be nourished by the same words of eternal life.

As to fellowship, some, by having so large a portion, may be tempted to weary of it, as Israel did of the daily manna, saying, "Our soul loatheth this light bread!" and to read it in a slight and careless manner. This would be fearfully provoking to God.

Advice:

If we’re unable to read four chapters a day, we can still make profitable use of the calendar by dividing it in two. Read those chapters to the left of the dates in one year and those to the right in the next. In this way we may still read the entirety of Scripture every two years and the entirety of Psalms and the New Testament each of those two.

If a day’s reading is missing, it’s best not to delay for the sake of recovering it. Press on with the next day’s readings first and then make up what was missed.

In a letter to a young believer, M’Cheyne counseled, You read your Bible regularly, of course; but do try and understand it, and still more to feel it. Turn the Bible into prayer. Thus, if you are reading the lst Psalm, spread the Bible on the chair before you, and kneel, and pray, "O Lord, give me the blessedness of the man, etc." "Let me not stand in the counsel of the ungodly, etc." This is the best way of knowing the meaning of the Bible and of learning to pray.